Dear Susan, fine years ago I told my husband that this city was going to implode. I watched house after house being built. Strip walls, stones on every corner and high rises.

Bigger than ever casinos and hotels replaced older ones, all in the desert.

We conserve water with desert landscaping, shorter showers, full loads of clothes in the water and full loads in the dishwasher.

If Pat Mulroy is as influential as stated in many articles why has she allowed new construction when we have a problem with water and we do live in the desert?

So my opinion is don't take water from wildlife habitats, farms and ranches. We don't need a building on every inch of land.

Growth isn't always progress, sometimes it is clutter.
