Subject: A 300-Mile Pipeline is Not the Answer.

Dear Jason King,

Great Basin National Park is an extraordinary place--remote, scenic, and treasured by millions of Americans who value our national park system. Plans to pump millions and millions of gallons from the park's vast ecosystem greatly threaten what is special about this place. I believe we should think about conservation instead of aggressive tactics that would possibly destroy this beautiful landscape.

Thank you for your consideration.
sincerely,
Jesse Daniel

Sincerely,
Mr. Jesse Daniel
