RE: Comment on SNWA application for water from Spring, Cave, Dry Lake and Delamar Valleys

Dear Jason King:

From our house we look down to a greasewood basin where Lake Bonneville lay. Dawn lights a dozen dry ranges flowing into Utah.

On the surface, this is desperately dry land right now.

And a mile down, where is the science that demonstrates recharge? Where is the science that demonstrates SNWA's water initiative is anything but water mining?

You say you're going to let the law decide. What law? The law that decided people were property? The law that decided property corporations were people?

How you interpret the law will become the law. Under cover of an abstract "law", don't make a decision that will desiccate this land into oblivion.

This land barely supports it's creatures now. Las Vegas must look elsewhere for water.

Sincerely,

Peter and Tonia
