Public Announcement: Series of Public Outreach Presentations by Nevada Division of Water Resources

Led by Adam Sullivan, State Engineer

The Nevada Division of Water Resources is hosting a series of public presentations to discuss critical topics related to water rights in the Humboldt River region. Building on last year's meeting, these sessions will focus on practical strategies for managing both groundwater pumping and surface water rights through conjunctive management.

State Engineer Adam Sullivan and senior NDWR staff will lead these discussions, providing updates on Humboldt conjunctive management efforts to protect the region's water resources, including an overview and summary of ongoing engagement with the Humboldt River Stakeholder Working Group. NDWR will also discuss the necessity and implications of a forthcoming draft curtailment order.

The future of water rights in the State is a serious concern, and these meetings are designed to provide important information on how we can work together to manage our water resources responsibly. Your input is essential, so please join us, ask questions, and help shape the path forward.
